MESSY

Dignity.

We believe in the dignity of life.

In searching beyond the seen and the graph-able aspects of life to the messy, the gritty to the hard, the unfair and the confusing. We believe in the tangled and the complexity of things hoped for and things taken away, things lost outside of our control.

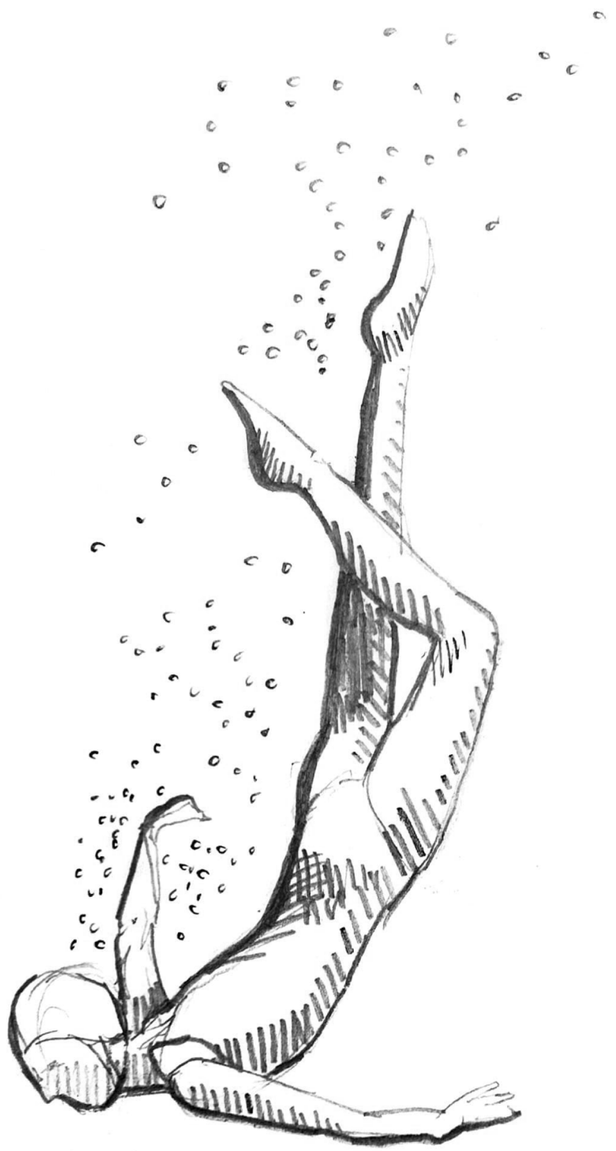

We believe in listening.

In sincerity and courage, to face the uncomfortable knowledge that living things can be hurt and non-living things damaged.

We believe in perseverance.

To see the complexity and brokenness and to hold on to hope - hope with action. To move forward into the unknown without all the information making the best choice with the information we have and learning from each step as we take another.

We believe in preventing erasures.

Over time, humans and non-humans are not to be forgotten. Ideas and intricate histories should not be lost after they take on a different form.
